

ABSTRACT

A semiconductor component in which the active junctions extend along at least one cylinder perpendicular to the main surfaces of a semiconductor chip substantially
5 across the entire thickness thereof, said cylinder(s) having a cross-section with an undulated closed curve shape.